MESSAGES & OPPORTUNITIES FROM CENTRAL UNITED METHODIST CHURCH TO YOU!

May 2011

What Now?

As I looked at May's calendar, it seemed at first like an ordinary month. We've celebrated Easter, with all the excitement and extra preparation. We're not celebrating Pentecost until next month. So what happens in May? On the church calendar, there are no special holidays. A time to coast, breathe and regroup.

But these 50 days between the resurrection and the coming of the Holy Spirit on Pentecost were tremendously exciting days for the followers of Jesus.

Jesus appeared to many of his followers, and he continued to teach them about the life of discipleship they would undertake on his behalf. Easter was the beginning, not the end, of their story. We may be familiar with Jesus' words, "All authority in heaven and on earth has been given to me. Go therefore and make disciples of all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Spirit, and teaching them to obey everything that I have commanded you. And remember I am with you always, to the end of the age." (Matthew 28:18-20)

Quite a job description! Jesus' work may have been finished, but the disciples' work was just beginning! Before they set out, they were to wait for the Holy Spirit—they needed God's infilling power in order to be able to fulfill Jesus' great commandment.

Too often we celebrate a glorious day like Easter, with all that it affirms about God's love and provision for us, and then we go back to life as usual, life the way it was before the holiday. Whew! Time to coast. We're not "seeing" Jesus, there are no appearances of the risen Lord, God is not telling us anything new, we don't need to wait for the Holy Spirit. It's May, and there are no special events [except Mother's Day], so we can get caught up, set aside those extra worship services, and get ready for summer.

What if Jesus still has a job description for us? What if, like the first followers, we will see Jesus if we pay attention? What if we need a fresh infilling of the Holy Spirit in order to be faithful? For we, too, are to go to people where they are, invite them into a relationship with Jesus, include them in the church, and teach them what it means to follow Jesus in a life of obedience. This way of life continues through months like May, and all the months thereafter.

In Christ,
Pastor Stephanie

MUSIC NOTES

Looking back on Easter and remembering singing the "Hallelujah Chorus," I thought it would be interesting to share a bit about Handel and his oratorio Messiah.

George Frideric Handel was born in Halle, Germany in 1685. At eleven years of age he was playing the organ and at eighteen had composed his first opera. In 1710, he moved to London where he continued performing and composing. Some time later, his interest grew toward composing oratorios—sacred works for choir and soloists. Messiah is the most well-known of these. It was first performed in Dublin, Ireland, on April 13, 1742 and was well-received. The listeners were very moved. Even though it was originally an Easter offering, it later became very popular during the Christmas season.

The first two parts of Messiah are about the birth and work of Christ. It includes solos and choruses describing the nature of our Messiah using both Old and New Testament scriptures, praising Him as the Lamb of God, who takes away the sin of the world. The final part re-emphasizes the main point—that by His death we are saved. One receives great joy listening to the vibrant choruses, especially the "Hallelujah Chorus." It is a great work of music, giving wonderful testimony to our Lord Jesus Christ.

Handel gave annual benefit concerts for his favorite charity—London's Foundling Hospital, a home for abandoned and orphaned children—and always included Messiah. It is a blessing to be able to sing and play and hear beautiful music to glorify God.

UNITED METHODIST MEN

Pizza Luncheon

Sunday, May 15

The next UMMen meal will be on May 15, and will be serving pizza, salad and dessert. This luncheon will be a little unusual. It's not on a fifth Sunday like it usually is, and the men are covering all expenses. We're making these changes so we can support, and participate in the Change the World mission event to be held that day. We hope to see you there.

IS IT REALLY SECURE?

We all know that locked doors and windows don't guarantee security of a facility—but it's an important basic step in the right direction.

Central's Trustees recently added another layer of protection to our security measures, a camera surveillance system. A number of cameras have been installed in strategic locations so that traffic outside and inside certain areas of our facility can be monitored.

In addition, the "Office Entrance" and the rear door off the small parking lot now have an intercom-buzzer system. At those times when staff members may be working alone in the building, these doors will be locked. Persons wishing to enter may push the buzzer and identify themselves when the staff member answers. (You do not need to push the button when speaking.) If it is appropriate for the person to enter, the door/lock release button will be pressed, the buzzer will sound, and you simply push the door to open. (Instructions will also be posted.)

(Of course, those who have been issued keys may still come and go as desired. We would ask, though, that you let the staff know when you're in the building.)

appreciate the Trustees' management and good leadership of our facility – and even more so, their big concern for the safety of our church family off.

VOLUNTEERS NEEDED – VMMP

There is an urgent need for volunteers for Volunteer Money Management Program at Shenandoah Valley Social Services. A VMMP volunteer helps older, low-income people and people with disabilities balance their checkbook, pay their monthly bills, or manage a government benefit. It's an important job—and does not offer a salary—but it does provide plenty of personal satisfaction while making a difference in our community.

If you want to become a volunteer, or simply want more information, please contact Suzanne Mahmoodian at 942-6660.

The VMMP Program is supported by the AARP Foundation, AARP's affiliated charity.

COMING SOON–NATIVE AMERICAN MINISTRIES SUNDAY!

On May 8th Central UMC will join other United Methodist churches throughout the United States in celebrating Native American Ministries Sunday – one of the six Sundays authorized by General Conference for a special church-wide offering.

Your generous gifts help develop and strengthen Native American ministries within the Virginia Conference and across the United States – by providing scholarships for Native American seminarians, planting Native American churches, and cultivating Native American outreach.

Other ways you can honor Native American Ministries is by learning more about Native Americans in the United States and in our area.

Here are a few facts about who they are, their economic life, and their health status:

565: The number of federally recognized Indian tribes in the U.S.

4.3 million: The number of people in the U.S. who self-identify as American Indians or Alaska Native, alone or in conjunction with another race. This represents 1.5% of the U.S. population.

56 million: Total acreage of Indian territory in the U.S. This combined area is about the size of the state of Idaho.

49%: The unemployment rate among people who live on Indian reservations.

31%: The percentage of American Indian children who live in poverty. 21% of all U.S. children live in poverty.

28%: The percentage of Native Americans older than 25 who do not have a high school diploma. The national average for all groups is 15%.

71 years: The average age expectancy of Native Americans. This is about five years less than the national average, primarily due to significant rates of several medical conditions (diabetes, mental health disorders, cardiovascular disease, pneumonia, influenza, and injuries).*

Things you can do:

- Learn more by checking out a recent book on Native Americans from one of the area libraries, such as First People - The Early Indians of Virginia (2nd ed) by Keith Egloff and Deborah Woodward, 2006 (available at Augusta, Churchville, Mary Baldwin, Staunton, and Waynesboro libraries), and/or How the Indians Lost Their Land – Law and Power on the Frontier, by Stuart Banner, 2005 (Available in Augusta and Waynesboro libraries).
- Visit the current exhibit from the John L. Huffer Collection of early Native American artifacts at the Waynesboro Heritage Museum. For over 40 years Huffer has collected and documented arrowheads, knives, axes, stone tools and pottery which confirm early Native American presence all over Waynesboro and Augusta County. The Museum, located at 420 West Main Street, is open Tuesday-Saturday, 9:00 am - 5:30 pm. Free.
- Celebrate the December 10, 2010, enactment of legislation by Congress paying nearly 500,000 Native Americans what they were owed by the federal government for use of land held in trust since 1920 (even though this was only a small fraction of what was originally owed).
- Provide a generous gift on May 8th to help fund Native American ministries that pave the way for those who aspire to serve Christ's church by making disciples of Jesus Christ for the transformation of the world. Because of your generosity, seminarians prepare to serve, congregations become stronger, and communities are transformed. – Hunter Mabry

THE BRACELET

By Luz M. de Tablan

My husband and I just came home from California where we attended our oldest granddaughter's class ceremony called "wearing of a doctor's white coat." We flew from Baltimore/Washington International Airport and went early to avoid delay and have enough time for our son to go to his work. There were already many passengers at the gate, so we tried to find vacant seats as we waited for our plane. We found a seat in front of a TV monitor and I found mine beside two ladies. I planned to read, but I don't want to lose my opportunity to know those ladies whom I have to fly with. I found out that the three of us have the same purpose on our trip: "to visit our loved ones." Betty was from Frederick, Maryland visiting her only grandson in Colorado. Brenda was from Petersburg, Virginia visiting her mother and her sick father in Kansas City; and I and my husband will visit our granddaughter who attends a medical school in Oakland, California. Betty, Brenda and I became "instant friends," within an hour and half because our trips were made possible by our "love for our families."

On the plane Brenda, my husband and I sat together, and Betty was seated opposite us. During our travel to Chicago, Brenda and I continued our conversation. We laughed and sometimes sighed on the things we shared and talked about. There was trust and comfort between us as if we were long lost friends that we have lots of things to catch up. I told her I am a Methodist very much involved in church and a United Methodist Women member and she told me she is Catholic also active in church functions. We talked about our economy; wars and unrest in the Middle East and the natural calamities here and abroad.

In between our conversation I found opportunities to share my thoughts with Brenda because of her worries. I told her that the world has always experienced some kind of trouble, but God's hands are always there and haven't stopped from giving us reason to trust Him; that these calamities make us all pull together our resources, strength and love to reach out and touch those who have suffered. I shared with her, too, that although there were many who believed that these calamities were God's divine judgment for some kind of un-Christian activity, but what I could see was an opportunity to help, to heal, to reconcile, to be hospitable and enjoy God's grace and love. I also shared that each day so many people continuously receive negative information through television and the internet; and their lives have been overshadowed by feelings of doubt, worry and most of all fear over what the future may hold. But I told her that we must hold on to the promise of God. I reminded her of John 14: 27-28: "Peace I leave with you; my peace I give to you; not as the world gives do I give to you. Do not let your heart be troubled, nor let it be fearful." God promised grief will be turned to joy and salvation, not destruction.

When we were about to land in Chicago she asked me if she could give me her bracelet. Though surprised, I said yes and thanked her for her kindness. The smile on her face was an expression of satisfaction, as if a very important "mission was accomplished." The bracelet was made of small beads of three sizes with a small silver cross as its pendant. She said she made the bracelet herself.

At the Chicago airport, Betty, Brenda I and my husband parted ways, but I know the "bracelet" that Brenda gave me will serve as a link of our new friendship.

When we reached California I showed the bracelet to my friend. She said that it's not a bracelet but a "rosary." A "rosary" is a string of beads and those beads are series of prayers used by Catholics which they recite as they touched each bead as if they were counting, and each bead corresponds to a prayer. After my friend explained about the bracelet or "rosary" I thought of Lent. The cross on the bracelet made me realize that at this season of Lent the cross played a very important role in the life and resurrection of our Lord Jesus Christ. As a member of our church and a United Methodist Woman the cross gives me hope, peace and joy and reminds me too that I should always be in fellowship with our Lord Jesus Christ through prayers for renewed strength from day to day. My dependence and helplessness will open the way and give God the opportunity of revealing His power.

The bracelet will remind me of Brenda; and the message of the CROSS will forever be remembered that God is ever-present in our lives.

Blessings, Luz
